CAMP INFORMATION

The philosophy of the Pride of the Diamond Instructional Day Camp is to assist young players in improving their baseball skills while developing proper playing habits. Program emphasis will be on individual skills and fundamentals of the game. Well organized sessions will enable players to participate in all of the skill sets that occur on a baseball field. Those areas include; outfield play, infield play, pitching, catching, base running, hitting and throwing. Players will be grouped by age and skill in order to ensure optimum individual and group instruction.

The Pride of the Diamond Instructional Day Camp will also include drills to help to correct the faults of a young player and enable them to learn the proper techniques to enhance their skills. Additionally, players will be placed on teams and instructed on team play. Players will also have the opportunity to participate in games each day while being coached by a staff member. The coaching staff's priority for the week will be to establish a learning environment while still having fun and continually promoting respect for the game and your opponents.

The Pride of the Diamond Instructional Day Camp is a staple in fundamental player development, sportsmanship, and pure enjoyment of the game.
